

FCC or anyone else to whom this may concern,

This "Protecting" Internet Freedom Act does just the opposite, it gives corporations the right to censor and monetize the internet to their pleasing without any regard to the effects it would have on the masses. It also allows them track what their customers do on the internet at any given time. This should not even be considered for passing; ISP's should remain classified as Title II and Net Neutrality should stay. I think that there should be a system in place protecting Net Neutrality from any further threats.
